- The four milestones are all intended to teach us different aspects of preparing for our Senior Projects
 1. Interview a Senior Project Group
 2. Communication and methods for groups
 3. Selecting a project
 4. Present findings

Milestone 1: Interview

- I began thinking about potential projects
- Got better insight on what to expect from a senior project
- Got to see first hand some issues that the group ran into

Milestone 2: Communication

- Looked into different software applications to host a project
- Looked into different communication applications for group work
- Decided on using GitHub for project collaboration
- Discord will most likely be the application that is used for group communication

Milestone 3: Preparation

- Reached out to professors on potential projects
- Began thinking more about what my project will look like
 - Begin working with a professor on a new project
 - Continuing working with my current research group

Conclusion

- Junior Project has been beneficial in getting the ball rolling for Senior Project Ideas
- Got insight on what the work looks like while working on a project
- Reached out to some professors and got some ideas for projects I may be interested in working on
- Currently deciding if I want to join a professor on a project or if I want to make my own
